Managing Conflicts

Volume 1 | Issue 9
7th February 2017

We have broken this article into 4 parts

- Past
- Present
- Future
- Relationships

◆ Past

- Civilizations attacked other civilizations
- The attacked revolted against these forces
- The revolt found more and more non-violent techniques succeeding
- However, the revolt found expression in violent acts too
- It took time for civilizations to become non-violent in disagreement

◆ Present

- The latest attacked states are in Africa and Middle East
- The oppressed are starting to revolt physically in the beginning

◆ Future

- It will take time for these civilizations to see sense in nonviolent methods
- Physical revolts will be many and across the world

◇ Relationship

- Nonviolent techniques will be seen to succeed in lasting and building relationships

✂ Summary ✂

- Learning entities will need to train on nonviolent techniques of management and handling conflict
- However physical risks will be seen to be high and risk management learning will be just as important
